

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ATTENDEES

5 Good Reasons why the Annual ACSG Conference in South Africa should be on your list of "Must Do's" every year

1. The ACSG is a voluntary organization of AC professionals in South Africa. We care passionately about the latest issues, research and technology in Assessment Centres and Development Centres. We've been running ACSG conferences for 29 years and the 2010 Conference in Stellenbosch promises to be our best ever. Come and find out for yourself how advanced and leading edge South Africa is in ACs. You can submit your abstract to us now and be a speaker at our conference in 2010 or you can just sign up to attend our conference. You'll certainly be keeping abreast with all that's happening in your profession. We have also signed up top international speakers that will be presenting along with local presenters.
2. March and April are said to be the very best time to visit the Western Cape area of South Africa. The excessive heat of summer has subsided, the colours and scents of autumn are in the air and the grapes are being harvested.
3. The Stellenbosch area is one of the major wine producing areas in South Africa. Check out the website: <http://www.wineroute.co.za>. South Africa offers surprisingly affordable holidays. If you have Euros, Dollars, Pounds etc. to spend you get a great exchange rate.
4. South Africa combines the very best of first world accommodation, art and entertainment with an African flavour. Check out some of the tour operators and see for yourself. If you love nature and appreciate the chance to see wild animals in their natural setting, how about a few days in the Kruger National Park (<http://www.krugerpark.co.za>)? or a whale watching boat trip?
5. When you book your airline ticket leave a few extra days either side of the ACSG Conference. You can arrange trips to explore South Africa on the spur of the moment. The Protea Hotel Stellenbosch, the conference hotel, can put you in contact with many tour operators, or you might spend a few extra days with your new-found South Africa friends.
